A Christmas Editorial

The first Christmas was the fulfillment of the greatest divine promise ever made.

For centuries the prophets of old had predicted the coming of a Redeemer.

The prophet Balaam pointed to the star which would identify the Messiah. Micah named the village to be hallowed by His arrival and Isaiah predicted His miraculous birth and foretold His name. However, 2,000 years prior to the fabled event, the patriarch, Jacob had told his sons about the coming of Christ.

The faith of the devout few became a certainty and the prophetic became the actual when the divine promise was fulfilled on Christmas night, 2,000 years ago.

According to prophecy, He was born into an humble environment as was accepted by only those who through divine vision were able to comprehend.

There was no room for Him in the inn because there was no place for a Prince of Peace in the hearts and plans of those who needed Him most.

Only the shepherds of the Judean hills and the wise men of the Orient were prepared to accept Him.

Otherwise, His lowly contemporaries scorned Him and the world's rulers tried to destroy Him.

Modern festivities generally glorify the birth in the manger as being beautiful. We color the scene with peaceful animals, adoring shepherds and kingly Magi with perfumed gifts.

But the real nativity was touching and glorious only to those who beheld it through the eyes of hope.

The great rolling chorals from the heavenly host were heard by only those whose ears were attuned by faith.

There were no news media to report to the world the glad tidings: "Unto You A Savior is born."

Enshrouded in spiritual and intellectual gloom, men had lost hope for a better life. Leaders and followers alike were motivated by greed, intolerance and lust.

The world was subdued by skepticism, men matured without worthwhile objectives—and became flotsam and jetsam in a life of futility.

However, despite King Herod's brutal efforts to murder the Christ child, the message of Christmas still got through.

After a sojourn in Egypt where His parents had hidden Him to avoid slaughter by Herod's legions, the Bethlehem Babe returned to His home village of Nazareth, where He matured into the only perfect man in all history.

He taught compassion and integrity and spoke out against the exploitation of the poor. He opposed ritualistic religion, which had become a device of the rich, and he publicly recognized the rights of women.

A nonconformist and heretic in His times, He exemplified tolerance, justice and love for all peoples regardless of race, religion or sex.

His strange doctrine came like a lightning bolt on a dark night and today, after twenty turbulent centuries, remains the only beacon which can lead mankind to peace.

Again, we pause to commemorate the birth of a spirit who suffered persecution and crucifixion to demonstrate a greater love than mortal man can conceive.

The gift of a Son at Bethlehem still reminds us that sacrifice is not obsolete and that brotherly love is the cardinal precept for human behavior.

Today the Spirit of love speaks to us across twenty centuries to proclaim humanitarianism as the sacred obligation of all men and nations.

Christmas should be a day of reverent gratitude and neither gifts nor tinsel should detract from our commemoration of the birth of a Savior.

The gifts of infinite value are those which express kindness, tolerance and compassion. There can be no real love without

Criticizes GOP Farm Policies

By CHET CURRIER

Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, a possible Democratic presidential candidate, has told the National Farmers Organization that Republicans are treading on shaky ground in rural America.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, the Republican national chairman who disagrees, was met by boos at one point in his speech before the NFO's convention here.

"As of today, I would think the administration is in serious trouble in rural America as far as votes are concerned," Humphrey said Thursday in criticizing Nixon administration farm policies.

"I do not believe this administration wants to raise farm prices," he said later at a news conference. Instead, Humphrey added, the administration wants "cheap food" as a means of fighting inflation.

Dole was booed when he said: "I want to bring industry to rural America . . ."

"You haven't heard the punch line yet," he added during the interruption. " . . . But what I really want to do is increase the farmer's income."

Several hours after his speech Dole told newsmen, "I think we will carry the Midwest. But it's going to be tough."

Humphrey and Dole agreed on one point about farm policy.

"There's room for improvement in both political parties," Dole said.

Humphrey told delegates, "Neither political party has done justice by the American farmer."

The political pot also boiled on other fronts as NFO President Oren Lee Staley announced that the organization had rejected feelers for a visit to the convention by Dr. Earl Butz, the new secretary of agriculture.

The NFO, which pushes for collective bargaining by independent farmers, had vigorously opposed Butz' nomination before his 51-44 confirmation by the Senate last month.

No Santa, There's No Virginia This Year

By BRIAN B. KING

Associated Press Writer
NORTH CHATHAM, N.Y. (AP) — No, Santa, there is no Virginia this year.

No Virginia O'Hanion Douglas this Christmas. She was buried May 17 here in the rolling Taconic hills.

Remember, she used to say, all the way until she was 81 and died, "I am anonymous from January to November."

And remember The New York Sun? Well, there's no Sun this Christmas either.

But then it was gone long before Virginia.

Remember when Frank Church, associate editor of The Sun, told Virginia—then 8 years old: "The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see."

He was talking about you, of course.

But perhaps he was talking also, in unconscious innocence, about the words he and she would leave behind—to become a part of Christmas in America, when The Sun, Church and now Virginia were gone. As much a part of it as good will toward men, commercialism, and Scrooge.

"Dear Editor," she wrote. "I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, 'If you see it in The Sun, it's so.' Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

She grew up, married and became a public-school teacher and principal in New York City. Then she retired here with her daughter's family in a quiet community of century-old homes.

And spent her last two Christmases in a nursing-home bed, never forgetting Church's answer to her question in the Sun:

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little . . ."

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished . . ."

La. Democrats Vote in Primary

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Louisiana Democrats go to the polls Saturday in a gubernatorial primary runoff that is a tossup between two new faces with similar reform platforms.

Congressman Edwin Edwards of Crowley, a French-speaking Catholic from South Louisiana, and state Sen. Bennett Johnston of Shreveport, a Baptist from North Louisiana, survived a 17-man field in a Nov. 1 primary to make the runoff.

Both Edwards, 44, and Johnston, 39, have based their campaigns on a wave of anti-corruption sentiment that swamped a host of veteran politicians in the first primary.

The outcome of the balloting was expected to ride on differences in custom and tradition between the liberal Catholic south and the conservative Protestant north.

Edwards led Johnston by 67,567 votes in the first primary with the great majority of his support coming from the south. Likewise, the heart of Johnston's vote was in the north.

Edwards says he is confident that for the first time in Louisiana political history the numerical superiority of the south will give him the margin of victory in the runoff. Changing population patterns have placed more than 72 per cent of Louisiana's voters in the southern half of the state.

Johnston disputes the claim, contending he will better his first primary majority in the industrial capital city of Baton Rouge and best Edwards in the suburban areas of New Orleans.

Both candidates concede that the outcome will be close, predicting that less than 50,000 of a possible 1.5 million votes could decide it.

United Ireland May Be Pollible

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath says his government would accept a united Ireland only if the people of Northern Ireland agreed.

"If, by agreement, the North and South should decide to come together," Heath said in an interview, "not only would the present government raise no objection, but I cannot conceive of any future government which would want to stand in their way."

"All we say is that a united Ireland cannot be brought about by force and that we cannot usurp the right of choice of the people of Northern Ireland."

Heath's statement appeared to rule out any prospect of Irish reunification soon, because Northern Ireland's Protestant majority is militantly opposed to union with the Roman Catholic republic in the south. But talks in search of a political settlement to end the violence in Northern Ireland are expected to begin early in the new year and to involve all parties in the British and Irish parliaments.

Heath also warned the guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army that their campaign of "murder and terror" to unite Ireland was doomed.

"We are determined to defeat you, and you will fail," he declared.

In Belfast, meanwhile, the government of Northern Ireland agreed to help organize a force of unarmed civilian vigilantes to help protect people and homes from the IRA. But Premier Brian Faulkner warned that the volunteer force would have to abide by a code of practice he would draw up with the British army.

Enemy Has Rebuilt Fuel Storage Depot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese have just about completed reconstruction of their key fuel-storage depot at Haiphong, more than five years after the depot was virtually wiped out by U.S. bombings.

Pentagon sources report that new tanks at Haiphong, North Vietnam's principal port, will be finished in a few weeks.

This will make it easier for North Vietnam to support speeded-up movement of supplies by truck convoy to Communist troops in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The Haiphong facilities handled an estimated 95 per cent of the petroleum products coming into the country before

Warning to Cuba by United States

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has alerted naval and air units to back up a warning that it will not tolerate further Cuban shipping attacks that threaten American citizens.

The State Department Friday added that the United States also would aid any ship under attack by Cuba if requested by the nation registering the vessel.

After two days of considering what action to take in the wake of the Cuban attack and seizure of two Miami-based Panamanian freighters—an attack that involved the wounding of an American citizen—State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said in a statement: "The United States government considers these armed attacks upon commercial vessels and statements that Cuba intends to continue such attacks to constitute a clear and present threat to freedom of navigation and commerce in the Caribbean and a threat to American citizens."

"Such threats are intolerable. The United States is prepared to take all measures necessary under international law to protect U.S. citizens and freedom of the seas against these attacks in this area."

McCloskey referred all questions about the ramifications of the warning to the wording of the statement itself, but minutes later the Pentagon said it would take "certain preliminary measures" to support the State Department's announcement.

It was learned at the same time that U.S. naval and air units had been put on alert in connection with the incidents, although officials would not discuss any details.

Judge Upholds Suspension

WATSON CHAPEL, Ark. (AP) — Federal Judge Oren Harris has ruled that the suspension of two Watson Chapel high school students will stand.

The two students were suspended in October for disciplinary action until the second semester. George Howard, the attorney for the two students, had requested a ruling from Harris.

John Norman Warnock, the attorney for the school district, had scheduled a news conference for Friday afternoon to discuss the matter.

Officers said Lloyd's east-bound car crossed the center line and collided head-on with a car driven by Grady Fulmer, 53, of North Little Rock.

Fulmer was treated at a Lonoke physician's office.

New Justices to Take Oath

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's two new justices, Lewis F. Powell of Virginia and William H. Rehnquist of Arizona, will be sworn in Jan. 7.

The new justices will go right to work after a swearing-in ceremony, the court said Thursday.

Powell, succeeding the late Hugo L. Black, becomes the 99th justice and Rehnquist, succeeding retired John N. Harlan, becomes the 100th.

Powell is a Richmond lawyer who was confirmed by the Senate Dec. 6. He is the seventh court member to hail from Virginia. Rehnquist, confirmed Dec. 10, is the first Arizonian. He is an assistant U.S. attorney general.

Live Mannequin Spooks Shoppers

By BILL STOCKTON
Associated Press Writer

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Robert the Mannequin stands motionless, head cocked, arms extended, slightly bent at the waist like any good department store dummy. Christmas shoppers hurry by unnoticed.

Then he moves, ever so slightly.

"Oh my," a startled matron whispers to her companion. "That dummy, he moved. I saw him move."

Click, click, click. Like a mechanical robot, Robert turns his head, moves his arms up and down, straightens up, slumps forward, again motionless. The green eyes stare blankly, the face frozen. Around the shopping mall, others have caught the movement on a platform at the entrance of a men's shop where several mannequins are clustered.

Suddenly the mannequin strides stiff-legged into the crowd, arms jerking up and down. The spectators melt before the advance until one young couple holds its ground.

Like a toy soldier that's run into a chair leg, Robert the Mannequin stands before the couple, arms outstretched, feet moving in place.

The crowd laughs and applauds.

Robert is outdrawing even Santa Claus at the shopping center.

"The hardest thing, the thing it took me the longest to learn, is not to laugh, not to break," Robert Montoya, 28, said during a break in the store where he's been hired.

Montoya's passion for pantomime was born 10 years ago when he saw the famed French mime, Marcel Marceau.

"I was hooked. He's been my idol ever since," Montoya said.

At grand openings, restaurants, banquets, wax museums, wherever he could convince someone a robot was needed, Montoya has piled his skills.

"People are so used to seeing mannequins around that when one moves, they tend to get a little nervous," he said.

"I've been hit, pinched, kicked and struck on the head with a skillet,"

Several minutes later Montoya again toy-soldiered into a crowd of shoppers, stopping in front of a dazzling blonde.

"Your place or mine, handsome," she cooed.

Robert the Mannequin, unflinching, wheeled and marched away.

State Police Trooper Robert Mills said Gary Dean Williams, 12, of Oneida died when the car in which he was riding went out of control struck a culvert and overturned.

Mills said Eloise Hart, 22, of Helena, and two other passengers, Alex Hart, 22, of Helena and Willie Mays Williams, 15, of Oneida, were hospitalized at Helena.

India Says Pakistan Breaks Truce

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan, his position in doubt after the loss of East Pakistan in the war with India, soon will turn power over to a "representative government," Radio Pakistan announced today.

India, meanwhile, accused Pakistan of breaking the one-day-old truce by carrying out "six major attacks" on Indian positions on the western front Friday night.

An Indian military spokesman said the Pakistanis used armor and artillery in the attacks along the border in the Punjab plains and in Kashmir but were repulsed with the Pakistanis suffering heavy losses.

The Pakistani broadcast said Yahya had summoned Foreign Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto home from New York, and that immediately upon his return power would be transferred to the new government under a new constitution.

Bhutto, chairman of the leftist People's party, was named last week as Pakistan's foreign minister and deputy prime minister in a new government that Yahya promised to form early next year. He was sent to the United Nations last week to represent Pakistan in the debate on the India-Pakistan war.

Bhutto's People's party won a majority of the seats from West Pakistan in elections a year ago for a new national assembly.

However, the East Pakistani-based Awami League, later outlawed by Yahya, won an absolute majority in the National Assembly because more seats had been allotted to the more populous eastern province.

The Indian military spokesman, briefing newsmen in northern Jullundur, said the fighting broke out in the Amritsar and Ferozepore sectors along the Punjab border and in the Muri and Mendhar sector of Kashmir—areas where heavy fighting took place during the war the past two weeks.

He said the Indians retaliated with "defensive action" wherever the Pakistanis attacked.

With formal cessation of hostilities, the most immediate task facing India is the repatriation of the nearly 10 million refugees who fled East Pakistan.

Authoritative sources in New Delhi estimated it would take nearly $900 million for vital reconstruction work in East Pakistan and for the rehabilitation of the refugees.

The informants said much of the money was needed to rebuild bridges, buildings, roads and most of the communications network destroyed or damaged in the past nine months of civil strife and war.

India estimated it was spending $3.3 million daily to provide minimal shelter and food for the refugees, who began fleeing East Pakistan Mar. 25 after Yahya sent the army in to crush the Bengali secessionist movement.

When war began Dec. 3, the international community had pledged $200 million in refugee relief, an amount New Delhi officials described as negligible.

The big question in the future is whether the refugees, 80 per cent Hindu, would return to a land from which they had been driven out.

Lighting Up for Christmas

It's the top job in Christmas tree decorating: lighting up the National Christmas Tree in Washington. This year the job has again been masterminded by Al Hart, an engineer in the General Electric Lamp Division. It's the ninth year he has designed the whole Pageant of Peace display of Christmas trees on the Ellipse.

This year's National Tree is a 63-foot high Frazier fir from Asheville, N. C., donated by the state of North Carolina, and the state and territory trees flanking it are 8-foot white pines from Kentucky. To achieve the right festive sparkle Hart has utilized a total of some 11,920 lamps and three miles of wire. On the National Tree alone there are more than 5,000 small red lights, 200 large white globe lights and over a mile of wiring—lights, design and labor all donated by the General Electric Company.

Lighting up the National Christmas Tree: designer Al Hart sees it through from drawing board, above, almost to the top, below.

... and the lights are going up for Christmas!

The National Report on What's Happening

Marvin Gaye Sings For Significance

By ERNESTINE GUGLIELMO

SOCIALLY SIGNIFICANT—Marvin Gaye was recently cited as "the nation's most socially significant entertainer" at NAACP's Annual Image Awards Presentation, where he took three of the top honors: male singer of the year, record producer of the year and the record album of the year for "What's Going On."

Marvin sang at the Image Awards. That was big news since he hasn't performed live in three years and has turned down as much as $75,000 for a concert. But Marvin explained that "the reaction of the people when I went to the stage to accept my awards, gave me inspiration."

ROAD TO SAN DIEGO—"Road to San Diego" isn't a Bob Hope-Bing Crosby movie. It's a campaign to draw a million people to San Diego to petition the President for immediate withdrawal of all troops from Indochina.

A benefit is taking place in New York's Cathedral of St. John the Divine to kick off this campaign. The benefit will include excerpts from Norman Mailer's new play, based on the novel "Why Are We in Vietnam?" The Chambers Brothers and Edgar Winter and White Trash are two of the groups who will perform. And Tennessee Williams is expected to make his first public statement on war, racism and oppression. Pablo Lights will set the mood with a light show. The sponsors, the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, the country's largest antiwar organization, have set the theme as "Remember the War ... a night of rock, lights and theater to remind you the war isn't over."

YOUNG FILMMAKERS—At a festival in New York teenagers showed their talents in the film media. The first prize in the Kodak Teen-age Movie Awards for one-reel entries went to 19-year-old Linda Klosky of Hammond, Ind., for her animated film called "The Ark. Directed by Noah, Special Effects by God."

SURVEYS AND SOLIDARITY—Since the law allowing 18-year-olds to vote was passed all sorts of surveys have been taken in order to find out how the nation's young people will vote and how powerful that vote will be in '72.

The Merit Publishing Company surveyed more than 23,000 of the nation's leading high school students to determine their attitudes and opinions.

The survey showed that Nixon would not be re-elected if it were up to these students. In fact, any Democratic candidate, except Hubert Humphrey, running against Nixon would get the majority of these student leaders' votes. Despite Senator Muskie's sentiments about a black running mate, 97 per cent of the students said they would vote for a well-qualified black person. But still loomed as the No. 1 issue was the Vietnam war. More than half of the young men said they would consider applying to their draft board for a conscientious objector status. And 80 per cent were in favor of an all-volunteer army. But 69 per cent said they wouldn't be the volunteers.

While the surveys continue, the new voters are trying to join together as a tremendous political force. Many small youth groups are joining national youth movements to give strength to the new youth caucuses.

Exercises Lead to Shapely Legs

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Hot pants haven't disappeared. They're just peeking out under skirts that open at the front or sides. And warm pants (the longer version) are still big on the scene. But you have got to be in your best fighting trim to wear them well.

If you already have shapely legs, count your blessings. If not, here are a few simple exercises that will help.

They're designed to slenderize your thighs, whittle away hip bulges—and they work. They're taken directly from the exercise curriculum of the famous Barbizon Modeling School.

If you're just a beginner, don't go overboard with these exercises all at once. Cultivating beauty of line requires gradual growth in muscle tone. Do each exercise for a count of eight to begin with and then increase each day until you reach 16.

SITTING HIP ROLL: This exercise is designed to whisk those unwanted inches off the lower hips and the area where hips and thighs meet. It's what the school calls a compression exercise because it utilizes the weight of your own body to compress and break down fatty tissue.

Sit on the floor, legs extended, knees straight. Roll over on your right hip as far as possible, maintaining balance by placing your right hand on the floor directly to the right of your hip. Do not place your hand behind your hips. Roll to the left side, placing your left hand directly to the left of the hip. Make sure you are sitting completely upright throughout the exercise and that you do the movements smoothly and slowly.

OUTER THIGH SCISSORS: Lie on your side, supporting your upper body on one elbow. Extend both legs together, slightly off the floor. Move legs in scissors motion, alternating one leg forward and one leg back. When you have finished, repeat the exercise on the opposite side.

INNER THIGH SCISSORS: This exercise is designed to tone muscles and get rid of fatty tissue on your inner thighs. Lie on your back with your arms extended to your sides. Extend both legs in the air straight above your hips. Open your legs to the sides and then cross them alternately in an open-and-close pattern, hitting your inner thighs together as you cross them.

FANNY THUMP: Sounds horrible, but it works. If you have a very firm, overmuscled hip development this exercise is for you. It goes right to the base of your Good-looking Hot Pants or warm pants look even better on shapely figures, such as that of Barbizon model Colleen O'Malley. It doesn't happen by accident. The school utilizes a series of simple exercises to sculpture the legs of its students. Some of these exercises are described in the accompanying article and can help you to shape up for spring.

THE GENERATION RAP

—by Helen and Sue Bottel

On Dangerous Ground

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I'm 14, pretty (I'm told) and don't have a bad shape. But I'm shy and the boys think I'm "straight." I don't smoke because I hate cigarettes. I pull good marks, don't get suspended from school. I don't really drink or blow weed, but I've tried wine and grass and would again if someone I liked were doing them with me. I don't get much chance, though, because of my "square" reputation.

That's why every boy I like has never liked me. I really dig a guy now. He saw me for a week, but I guess he thinks I'm too straight. He dumped me.

Unless I'm drunk I just sit like a lump and say nothing. When I'm drinking I'm nice and figure problems. Lie flat on your back, arms outstretched at shoulder level, palms up, right leg stretched on the floor. Bend your left knee, bringing the foot close to your buttocks on the floor. Roll over on your right hip halfway between hipbone and spine. After you have located the fattest spot on your hip, raise the hip from the floor about two inches then return it to the floor with a thump on the fatty spot. Reverse the position of your legs, repeat the exercise on the fattest part of your left hip for the same number of times.

If you're a little underweight you'll want to pay particular attention to this exercise. It's designed to build up curves in the right places.

Perseverance with these exercises will get you in shape for a leggy look for spring and summer.

friendly with a good sense of humor, and I'm not afraid of people. But I'm scared of getting high because my two girl friends do, and make fools of themselves. Still, they get every boy they go after.

How can I be more open and less straight and make this boy like me again? —MISSING OUT HELEN'S ANSWER

DEAR M.O.:

You talk as if "straight" were some kind of bad disease! I get the feeling you're so hung up on shyness that you're desperately searching for a magic "cure"—grass, pills, wine—anything that makes you "nice and friendly."

It won't go, M.O.! A 14-year-old who tries to change her personality with drugs is only feeding her problem—for she'll soon grow dependent on them.

Work on your self-consciousness instead. Stop thinking you're a "square" and a loser. Get interested in people. Help them (the No. 1 guy especially) wherever you can. Become aware that they're worried too, and make them more comfortable because you can understand how they feel.

Being straight isn't your problem. It's being scared! And when you realize others are too, your fear will gradually go away.

—HELEN
SUE'S VIEWS
DEAR MISS:

A guy who dumps you because you're straight has got to be so crooked you wouldn't want him. I hope my old age isn't showing when I say 14-year-olds that mess with booze, grass and pills are teenie-bopping their way to big trouble! —SUE

P.D. DON'T!
Take it from a 17-year-old who knows that junior hi tempotations, dares, put-downs and "miseries because you aren't making it" are the worst of any you'll ever face: Things get better. They really do. —SUE

LAST WORD FROM HELEN: It's not just adults who hit the "Now when I was young..." button. Right, dear little daughter of mine? —H.

P.S. No offense, Sue—your advice to M.O. was the straight goods! —YOUR MA
DEAR RAP:

Trying to get my mind off slow starvation I just had to write "WHAT IS A DIET?" (with additions from a friend):

A diet's beginning is when you find out the clothes that fit six months ago don't any more.

It's starting out each day with fresh enthusiasm and will power that weaken with the passing of every sweet.

It's trying to enjoy cottage cheese when others feast on chocolate cake.

A diet is eating the low-calories stuff you hate most so it will kill your appetite. It's trying to make a celery stalk taste like a candy bar.

It's ignoring your stomach when the poor empty thing grows obnoxious.

It's anxiously watching the scale-reading swing back and forth... And weighing yourself even before morning coffee because that's when you weigh less.

It's licking your lips yet turning away from gorgeous TV commercials on food.

It's taping a picture of a hippopotamus to the refrigerator door.

Finally, it's the great satisfaction when your belt is still loose on the last notch, and your slacks no longer feel like skin. —NANCY AND G.W.

SOCK IT TO KNITS

It's cold weather and time for knit pants. To avoid the uncomfortable clinging at the knee and thigh, substitute regular knee socks for panty hose, which might be causing the problem.

Wang Mang, Champion of the Downtrodden

Rome at its Height Drapes Itself in Chinese Silk

Corruption, Intrigue, Assassination Doom the House of Han

The Seres (Chinese) send to Rome the fleecy products of their forests... all that a Roman lady may exhibit her charms in transparent gauze.

—Pliny the Elder

In A.D. 8, a popular Confucian scholar, Wang Mang, regent to the 4-year-old emperor, seized the throne of China, proclaimed a new dynasty, the Hsin, and launched a sweeping program of reforms.

He nationalized the land and ordered that the great estates be broken up and given to those who tilled them. He freed thousands of slaves, advanced low-interest loans to farmers and small businessmen and nationalized the chief industries.

But Wang Mang had attempted too much too quickly and had made too many powerful enemies, even because of government bungling —among those he had tried to help. After 15 years, the nation rebelled, Wang Mang was killed and the Han dynasty reinstated.

The civilized world at this time was divided between two great empires in their heydays—China in the East and Rome in the West. Though they had no diplomatic contact, the Silk Road across Asia brought vast quantities of that coveted fabric to Rome.

While the historian Pliny may have been mistaken about how the "Seres" the Silk People made silk and was somewhat of an old fogey about feminine fashions, he was right when he pointed with alarm to the huge sums that "luxury and the female sex cost us." Many millions in Roman gold drained into the pockets of middlemen along the Silk Road over the decades. Thus little silkworms may actually have contributed to the decline and fall of the mighty Roman Empire.

Before that, however, decay again infected the house of Han. A bloody revolt by a religious sect called the Yellow Turbans undermined the central authority of the government. Dowager empresses and palace eunuchs became the real powers behind the throne, which more often than not was occupied by a child—until he became old enough to be assassinated.

The corruption and cruelty of the eunuchs resulted in a general massacre of "the beardless ones" by the military in A.D. 189 and signalled the start of a period of civil war.

The Han dynasty finally ground to an end in A.D. 220. Yet so glorious had it been that Chinese long afterwards were to call themselves Sons of Han. If for only one thing alone—its gift of paper to the world—it would deserve to be remembered.

FBI Career Is Worth Investigating

By ERNIE HOOD

Roger T. M. Morganton, N.C., writes: "Any information you can give me regarding federal law enforcement will be greatly appreciated."

Dear Roger: The Federal Bureau of Investigation has expanded substantially its jurisdiction over the years. Although it is impossible to forecast personnel requirements, employment may be expected to increase with the growing FBI responsibilities. The FBI provides a career service and its rate of personnel turnover is traditionally low. Nevertheless, the FBI is always interested in applications from qualified men who would like to be considered for the position of special agent. To be eligible, an applicant must have graduated from a state-accredited resident law school or a four-year resident college with a major in accounting. The law school training must have been preceded by at least two years of resident undergraduate work. Accounting graduates also must have had at least three years of experience in accounting or auditing or a combination of both. Also, applicants must be at least 23 years of age and not more than 40 years of age and must be willing to serve anywhere in the United States or Puerto Rico. They must be at least five feet seven inches tall and capable of strenuous physical exertion; they must have excellent hearing and vision, normal color perception, and no physical defects which would prevent their using firearms or participating in dangerous assignments.

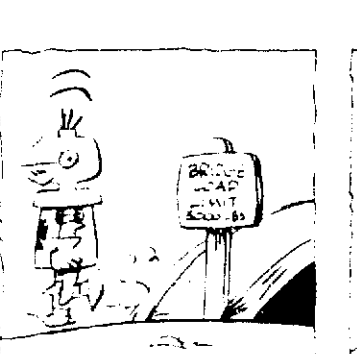

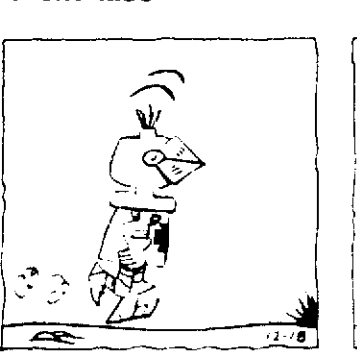

Marianne A. Scranton, Pa., writes: "I'm interested in the field of oceanography. Can you provide me with some helpful information?"

Dear Marianne: Oceanography is an excellent career field. Employment opportunities for those having degrees in oceanography—especially the Ph.D. degree—will hold up well during the 1970s. Well-trained persons with bachelor's degrees in related sciences will find opportunities mainly as research assistants in routine analytical positions. The over-all outlook is for very rapid growth in this profession. Growing recognition of the importance of the oceans to the nation's welfare and security has heightened interest in oceanography and has opened new fields for specialists. In the years ahead, oceanographers will be needed for research in areas such as underwater acoustics, surface and subsurface ocean currents, and ocean floor topography, all of which are important to improving the nation's defense against submarines and surface vessels. There also will be demand for oceanographers in many other roles, such as supplying weather and iceberg information, sea mining problems; and to predict, control and prevent pollution and damage caused by waves and tides. And don't overlook the demand for oceanographers to teach in colleges and universities.

U.S. Labor Department Bulletins are sources of in-depth information on career fields. They can be obtained by writing the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. For the FBI, ask for Bulletin 1650-54, priced at 10 cents; and for oceanography, ask for Bulletin 1650-24, priced at 15 cents.

College Basketball Roundup

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Mel Davis was a rising star in high school, many of the nation's college basketball powers cast glances his way.

No, thanks, said Marvelous Mel, I'd rather stay home.

"I wanted to play in New York," said St. John's power forward. "I didn't want to go out of town. And I liked St. John's winning teams."

Well, if St. John's teams are winning lately, it's only because of the Redmen's jumping junior. And Friday night's performance was classic Davis as he scored a game-high 24 points to pace an 85-75 victory over Rhode Island in the Marshall University Memorial Tournament.

The victory was the fifth straight this season for the undefeated, eighth-ranked Redmen.

Davis is the reason for it all. "He's our chairman of the boards," boasts St. John's Coach Frank Mulhoff.

In other games involving Top Ten teams Friday night, fourth-ranked North Carolina steamrolled Wake Forest 99-76, sixth-ranked Brigham Young lost to Kansas 83-67, No. 7 Kentucky stopped Missouri 83-79 and Southern California tied for 10th, beat Cincinnati 72-64.

Greg Cleuss added 22 points for the winners, who moved into Saturday night's finals against Marshall University. The Thundering Herd took the nightcap of Friday night's first round doubleheader by beating Mississippi St. 95-69.

North Carolina's fast break ran the Tar Heels past Wake Forest and into the finals of the Big Four Tourney against North Carolina State, a 67-62 winner over Duke.

Robert McAdoo, a junior college transfer and star in the Pan American games, teamed with Bobby Jones to help North Carolina overpower smaller Wake Forest. The two controlled the boards and led in scoring—McAdoo 15 points and Jones with 20.

The Southern California victory and Brigham Young defeat were in the Jayhawks Classic at Lawrence, Kan.

Ron Riley, helped pull Southern Cal into a 53-50 lead with two straight field goals at the five-minute mark and the Trojans never lost the lead. Thrice-beaten Kansas threw a defensive ring around previously unbeaten Brigham Young and Bud Stallworth led a blistering second half as the Jayhawks pulled off an upset.

Bob McCowan came off the bench to lead Kentucky to a come from behind triumph over Missouri in the Kentucky Invitational Tournament. Princeton, the country's No. 18 club, defeated California 85-59 in Friday night's first game and moved into the finals against the Wildcats.

Kentucky was down by as many as seven points, but tied Missouri at 70-70 and McCowan engineered a fast, four-point Wildcat lead with two corner shots.

Tom McMillen scored 33 points, four during a 10-point string which broke open the game, to help the 15th-ranked Maryland Terrapins beat Canisius 86-77.

Long Beach State the No. 13 team, grabbed an early lead and upended Santa Clara 80-59.

Travis "The Machine" Grant poured in 54 points to help Kentucky State, the No. 1 college division team, wallop Marian College 114-90.

Rams Must Win to Stay Alive

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Rams are in a familiar position as they prepare for Sunday's final National Football League regular season game against the Pittsburgh Steelers. They know they must win or tie to keep their playoff hopes alive. Only they don't know if winning or tying will be enough.

The Rams trail San Francisco by one-half game in the battle for the final NFL playoff berth. If L.A. wins or ties Pittsburgh, it can sneak into the playoffs should the 49ers lose to Detroit. But the San Francisco game is on the West Coast and will just be starting at about the time the Rams-Steelers contest is ending.

That means if the Rams get by the Steelers, they'll have to wait around and hope the Lions can trip up San Francisco.

It was the same story last year when the Rams were in New York for the final game and needed a victory over the Giants and some help from Oakland to create a tie for the division title. Los Angeles held up its end of the bargain but the Raiders bowed to the 49ers, allowing San Francisco to clinch.

If the Rams win this time and 49ers tie, it would leave both teams with identical 8-5-1 records but L.A. would get the division crown and the playoff berth by virtue of having beaten San Francisco twice.

The NFL's seven other playoff berths have all been wrapped up with Baltimore, Miami, Cleveland and Kansas City in the American Conference and Dallas, Washington and Minnesota in the NFC all bidding their time this week.

While the playoff teams—except in the NFC West—have been decided, the pairings have not and that's what will be determined this weekend. It all depends on which team winds up on top in the East Division of each conference.

The playoffs begin Saturday, Dec. 25 with the AFC East champion, Dallas or Washington, playing at Minnesota, the NFC Central champ, and the AFC East champ, Baltimore or Miami, playing against the AFC West champ, Kansas City.

On Sunday, Dec. 26, it will be the AFC's wild card qualifier, Baltimore or Miami, at the AFC Central champion, Cleveland, and the NFC wild card qualifier, Dallas or Washington, at the NFC West champion, San Francisco or Los Angeles.

Besides Los Angeles' game at Pittsburgh and Detroit's contest at San Francisco, Sunday's schedule includes New England at Baltimore, Green Bay at Miami, Cleveland at Washington, Denver at Oakland, Minnesota at Chicago, Buffalo at Kansas City, Atlanta at New Orleans, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, San Diego at Houston and Cincinnati at the New York Jets.

The pro weekend begins Saturday with St. Louis playing at Dallas.

In Parrish, Fla., a white Leghorn owned by the Page Youngblood family is known with reason as "The Neighborhood Terror." Ready to attack anything from cat to cannon ball, Charlie may not exactly have play in mind in this case but obviously has something going with the football.

Young Girl Has Won Thirteen Cycle Trophies

FORT RUCKER, Ala. (AP) — Janice Linker is a diminutive, brown-haired, 14-year-old who is making demands on her parents. She's winning so many motorcycle trophies with her 100-cc bike that she needs more space in the house to store them.

The problem started last May when Janice obtained her first bike, and it increased after she got her initial taste for racing in an event last July. Since then, she has acquired 13 trophies, five of them for first place finishes, and one of them is large enough to reach almost to her waist.

Her father, CWO Billy R. Linker, of Ozark, doesn't mind seeing the house fill with those tall, bronze awards, however. He raced motorcycles himself several years ago, and presently serves as a flagman at the Dothan track where his ninth-grade daughter races.

Her mother, Shelby Linker, also claims to be an experienced biker. "I rode Janice's motorcycle one time in our backyard," she says, "and that was enough for me."

Mrs. Linker, perhaps mindful that Janice is their only child, says that the races make her a bit nervous, but she says she has enough confidence in her daughter not to worry too much.

Confidence is one of Janice's attributes, too, although she admits that things become "rather scary" a time or two in races.

One of those times was at the starting line when she gave her bike too much throttle. The cycle bucked up on the back wheel, depositing Janice on the dirt. That, she says, is not the best way to win a race.

However, before the laps were finished, she caught up with the rest of the competitors, including some which had the more powerful 125-cc and 175-cc engines.

Janice is not perturbed by the fact that motorcycle racing is a bit unusual for young girls. She just gives a wide, attractive smile, then roars away on the bike—usually to win.

Gator Again

When North Carolina meets Georgia in the Gator Bowl Dec. 31, the Tar Heels will be playing in that bowl game for the second time.

North Carolina beat the Air Force, 35-0, in the 1963 Gator Bowl.

How to Win

The new coach of the Detroit Pistons, Earl Lloyd, gets down to basics in explaining how a team wins in the NBA: "The team that gets the most easy baskets and plays the best defense usually wins."

Falcon MVP Was Pro Football Dropout

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

ATLANTA, Ga.—(NEA)—You know defense has taken over in professional football when Don Hansen (who's that?) is voted the most valuable player on the Atlanta Falcons. That's by vote of his teammates, which makes it mean something to Don.

If real estate had been moving a little faster back in Evansville, Ind., in 1968, jug-eared Don, a native Hoosier with closely clipped blond hair and a narrow face, wouldn't be filling gaps and dropping into coverage zones for the Falcons.

You see, at the age of 24, he had already decided he was tired of football. The Minnesota Vikings had drafted him as an obscure linebacker out of the University of Illinois, where he played alongside the renowned Dick Butkus. For two years, 1966-67, Don had picked up children on the sidelines at Bloomington, Minn. He has it figured out: he got into 17 games in two years (remember, with exhibitions, the pros actually play 20 games a season).

"And I was tired," he explains, "physically and mentally. I still had an Army obligation then. I went from the service, with just three days in between, straight to training camp, and by the end of the season I'd had it. I just quit and decided to sell real estate."

The whole year of '68, it didn't sell. A guy's got to make a living and he knew that Norm Van Brocklin, the coach who had originally drafted him for the Vikings, could use him in Atlanta. So Don took a big whiff of his ego-deflator and returned to the NFL as a Falcon linebacker.

The Falcons already had Tommy Nobis, who was being compared with Butkus, which was O.K. with Don. At 6-3 and a relatively slight 220 pounds, he's more suited to an outside slot and by last season had worked himself into a regular job. No all-pro, mind you. Not with Nobis around. Then Tommy hurt his knee early this season, and Hansen, who had filled in for him once before, was shifted to the middle post, really the glamor job of defense, tracing back to Sam Huff. He has been a revelation. Now they're talking about making Nobis an offensive center next year.

Hansen shakes his head. "I just want to know I have a regular job," he says. "I'm not as good as Tommy. I won't play the middle as long as he's around. I'm not as adept because I don't have his experience. He's stronger and he's a better tackler."

But Don has that MVP award. It's significant recognition on a team which also has Claude Humphrey playing defensive left end and on a Falcon platoon which plays extremely physical football.

Humphrey has a different identity problem than Hansen. Everybody around football knows Humphrey is one of the great ones at a position that attracts super-stars—Deacon Jones, Carl Eller and Bubba Smith, for instance. But the all-pro pickers don't know him.

"You gotta have a gimmick," says Claude, who is 6-5 and 255 and destroys quarterbacks. "I got none. You see, David Jones is Deacon. Bubba is Kill. Kill. Cedric Hardman of the 49ers is Nasty. Nasty. Carl Eller is part of the Purple Gang. Richard Jackson of Denver is The Sheriff. Even that kid from my school (Tennessee State) gets himself known as Turkey Joe Jones."

"I'm just Claude."

He is also, one of the veteran defensive tackles tells me, the best defensive end in football—"better than Deacon or Eller, better than Jackson, and I've played against all of them."

He is so good that on a crucial fourth down play late in the Falcons' victory over Oakland, with the Raiders threatening to score, he ran right over Ron Mix, one of the premier defensive tackles for years, and sacked the quarterback for a nine-yard loss.

"Aw, he was just expecting an inside move which I showed him earlier in the game," says Claude modestly, "so I caught him off balance. I don't really push people around."

"Don't let him bull you," retorts our veteran informant. Come to think of it, all that modesty by Hansen and Humphrey suits the purpose. Makes them sound properly defensive by nature.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Size Counts?

Len Salvemini is only 5 feet 5, 149 pounds, but the Air Force Academy freshman is one the Falcons' most outstanding athletes, having led the academy soccer team in scoring with 17 points on 13 goals and four assists.

Plimpton Perspective

George Plimpton, the Mit-tiesque author, has this comparison to make between the Detroit Lions, with whom he trained in 1964 and the Baltimore Colts, his "teammates" for three weeks this summer. "The Lions were a group of very distinctive individuals—a variety of characters. If one had to find a word to fit the Baltimore team of 1971 it would be 'solidarity.' Perhaps that is a quality that comes with being a champion."

Winston, Page Named Defensive Player of Week

MINNEAPOLIS-St. Paul (AP) — Some two dozen writers pressed forward around Alan Page, straining to hear every word from the Minnesota Vikings' star, while Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., stood on the fringe waiting to congratulate him.

Roy Winston stood by his locker alone.

The scene was the Vikings' locker room late Saturday afternoon after they had wrapped up their fourth consecutive National Football Conference Central Division title by defeating the Detroit Lions 29-10.

One would have guessed that Page had been a Saturday afternoon hero, throwing Lions' quarterback Greg Landry for two big losses, nailing running back Albie Taylor for a four-yard loss and blocking a fourth quarter punt out of the end zone for safety that put the game out of reach of Detroit.

During all the celebrating of Page's feats, Winston quietly dressed. His role in the victory wasn't as obvious and his low key personality not quite as newsworthy as Page's.

But it was Winston who had given the Vikings all the breathing room they needed by picking off a Landry pass on the third play of the game and racing 29 yards to the end zone. Later he had what looked like another TD in the books after romping 67 yards on a lateral from Bobby Bryant following a fumble recovery, but that was called back when an official called it a forward lateral.

When the action ended the Vikings voted the game ball to both Page and Winston for their defensive play.

And, for their individual heroics, Page and Winston were also selected Tuesday by the Associated Press as Defensive Players of the Week in the National Football League.

They beat out Washington cornerback Ted Vactor, Kansas City tackle Buck Buchanan and San Francisco safety Mel Phillips for the honors.

NCAA Finals

The finals of the 1972 NCAA basketball tournament will be held March 23-25 at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Homer's Pace

Homer Jones is the all-time NFL leader in yards-per-pass reception with a 22.3 yard average on 224 catches in seven seasons.

Long Walk

A group of 1,000 Swiss sports enthusiasts is planning to walk 150 miles to the 1972 Munich Olympic Games. The Swiss National Tourist Office and Swiss Sports Aid, organizers of the march, have promised gold medals to all participants, some of whom are older than 70.

Tobacco Co. to Sponsor Unser and Andretti

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—The "no smoking" sign posted in the pits of every auto race track, because of the high explosive fuel that gets splashed around, may be a little harder to enforce in the '72 season.

Viceroy cigarettes got into the act Tuesday, following Marlboro and Winston.

Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., Viceroy manufacturers, announced it was making a "total commitment" to sponsorship of Al Unser, the United States Auto Club's 1970 champion, and Mario Andretti, the 1965, 1966 and 1969 champion.

Brown & Williamson President Edwin Finch said the company also will be "associate sponsor" of Joe Leonard, the 1971 USAC champion and teammate of Unser and Andretti in the Parnelli Jones-Vel Miletch organization.

No mention was made of the amount of money involved in the Viceroy-Jones-Miletch deal only that it was "long term." It probably runs into six figures because the team will have to forfeit a share in the special point fund Philip Morris contributes to the USAC championship.

Al Unser has won $38,000 of Marlboro money in the last two years. The company spent $200,000 on the program last year alone.

R. J. Reynolds will plug Winston this year with a $120,000 contribution to three point funds in the major stock car circuit, the National Association for Stock Car Racing. Reynolds also will sponsor some separate races with big purses.
